

Same Game, Different Rules

HP Hooded Cobra 666

January 12, 2018

There are rules every being follows that makes it what it is.

Many people in some subjects, and especially to defend things that wear down and destroy life, often, argue about the beings of people, the majority of people, who are just created into cattle. "According to them this, according to them that" and so forth. If you accept the rules of the cattle, their 'ethics', and their understanding about life, you will be the same as them. You will be cattle. And I am talking about ethical rules and the decisions you take in your life, not rules like law.

The rule of law is something that affects everyone and everyone has to follow for their material freedoms and to avoid repercussions. And because truly much of law is actually sensible, except much of it which has been turned into Talmud, such as for laws prohibiting self defense, for example. But the corpus of a legal system was an always a gentile thing actually.

But let's say we are talking in a world where there were no laws. One example is drugs are legalized on some states, for example. If one becomes a junkie, one is indeed being legal. So we can understand that law is frail many times to point to what is right, correct, and what advances you as an individual. This doesn't void out the existence of the law, and it doesn't change the fact that one must follow it, but we think of it in a philosophical manner.

So there are no longer 'written laws' to follow. Typical is the case of drugs like weed, where this 'legislation' but the cops are smoking it themselves in some cases. But let's think of another thing. The rules which you follow, make you who you are. If you have set a rule to go the gym, you will become fit. If you have set a rule of life to die from obesity and drug abuse, you might as well end up in this way.

If someone is a Satanist, one should look after their freedom. Freedom can have much content. Many people take freedom what is claimed by liberalism. Aka how one should be free to develop disease for example. And yes, you are by all means, free to take the downhill road if you want. All my posts argue is that this is unwise, and that you will suffer. And you know it too. Which is why few people who are taking the downhill road, either hate me, get agitated, or change their ways. Others can agree.

The objective of Satanism is to keep improving yourself until you are no longer a member of what today is falsely called 'humanity', which is basically based around death, ignorance, and enslaving yourself and others. The enemy has made humans cattle, and a striking majority, have accepted this position due to pressure.

One must de-cattle-ize themselves and return themselves to being a proper human being. You don't have to follow 613 Torah like-laws for this. But imagine if you did follow these rules, you would be a Jew in many ways.

In the same way, if you follow the stupid reasoning of cattle, you will be the same as them. And if you are the same as them, with not having the will to move past this state, we can't really do much together, if that makes sense. Our objectives are against one another. Because we don't want to become cattle...In their sane mind.

In the same way it's pointless to argue with a cow that goes like "Moooooo" every time you try to say something to it, it's pointless to argue with cattle in the same way on matters like Jeboo Christ, for example. They just go 'moooooooooooooooo'.

The same thing applies with people who instead of reasoning, they are stuck on some things which are purely destructive. And lastly, you are definitely 'free' by us, and 'free' by society to take a downhill road. Nobody, nor I, or anyone else, would 'prohibit' you. What we can and is our duty to prohibit is you spreading this to other people. Destruction can be kept private.

There are literally two millions of other websites to go full on how you want to destroy yourself faster than ever. One can go find others if they feel closer to them. This place has to be one of the few places that is meant to keep things proper so that people can advance...

Of course nobody who struggles is banished. If there is true will to advance, we are here to help as we have done all the time. Even if one fails. There is a decision to be made though, between the Untermensch and the Ubermensch which exists in all people, on which you are after. If you are after your superior version, be our guest. If you have decided you want to rot there is not much we can do about this, as your life belongs to you.

Simply because the goal of our spiritual collective is to advance, become free, and as the Gods. And there are very few rules that must followed. So rotting individuals cannot dictate over the majority on the quickest routes to destroy themselves. Of course one can support their thesis, argue etc, but this is a whole other thing.

How do you make these rules? Everyday the choices you make, the more they are repeated, they instill rules in you. There is nothing magickal about this. If you choose to become obese, you will become morbidly obese. These rules will bring to avenues like heart attack and so forth. If you choose to do something positive, you make a positive rule about yourself, opening you to positive outcomes.

We play the same game, which is life, but we play with different rules. We can't tolerate the laws of the 'Goyim' and the rules of the enemy to be imposed upon us. The rules of the spiritual Satanist cannot be the same ethical rules as the cattle, the enemy, or any other failing life-form. There are those who understand this, and those who will understand this later, and we really hope it's not too late.

We help humanity and try to save the world so that the world will improve aside us, so that we can also improve faster, and create a positive environment for us and others involved. We don't help humanity 'just because', and we certainly don't pretend to be Jewish types of 'humanitarians' either, who just pretend they are so good people and that this is why they do it.

Because obviously they aren't. It's all done for shekels and for other reasons. The only rules of 'Spiritual Satanism' are the natural rules of empowerment, upward evolution and maintaining a strong existence.

The next time you go to make your choices and set your 'rules', think if your rules are drawing you towards cattle, or if they draw you towards liberation which is spiritual Satanism. It's not the mere aspect of 'dedication' that picks your side, but your choices and who you are becoming through them. Satanism comes in the becoming, initial sacraments only open you the door and welcome you to the club. Then you have to become part of the club and grow.

If a door is open in front of you (Dedication) and you just get one step in, and ten steps behind, you are returning back to where you were before. Although this can never happen. The door to the club is open, come and join the fun. If someone goes too far back, they can fall again down the cliff from which they crawled back up to get to the door...Sometimes the fall can also be fatal for the person.

So it's better to make the permanent decision that you rose from the pit of crap...And that you aside us...

We play the same game (life) but we play by different rules...

HAIL SATAN!!!!

[HoodedCobra666] wrote:

Just to be clear. Your rules don't have to be imposed on other people and/or society. You just have to live by your positive code. Those who try to use my message here as an example for their own proselytism, try to play Nazarene vs rabbis v2.0, Catholics versus protestants and other memes, should remember, one of our rules is to never ever proselytize.

If people want to come to the Truth then let them have it...If not...That's their issue.

Reply from HP. Hoodedcobra666

[HeilOdin666] wrote:

[HoodedCobra666] wrote:

“Just to be clear. Your rules don't have to be imposed on other people and/or society. You just have to live by your positive code. Those who try to use my message here as an example for their own proselytism, try to play nazarene vs rabbis v2.0, catholics versus protestants and other memes, should remember, one of our rules is to never ever proselytize.

If people want to come to the Truth then let them have it...If not...That's their issue.”

“What is your definition of proselytize? Because people here are doing exactly that spreading links and videos and propaganda all over trying to get people into satanism. If not for this I wouldn't be here.”

Spreading the truth means informing people and giving them a choice, spreading information.

Proselytism is forced conversion and forcing others to become what you are by means of coercion and so forth.

Reply from HP. Hoodedcobra666

[Jack The GOOD guy] wrote:

“So hypothetically if I'm leading a promiscuous love life but I'm not breaking any laws, it's morally incorrect? Although I wouldn't let this hinder my advancement.”

Nobody issued anything about how people decide to run their personal life. It's about advancement we are talking about here. No other hypothesis. Run your love life as you see fit/pleasing, obviously.

© Joy of Satan Ministries

www.joyofsatan.org
